

Since November 2000, I have been engaged with various processes of reading the text through an interesting dialogue with my students that has helped me in continuously upgrading the teaching-learning process.

My doctoral research has been on fairy tales, especially the first wave European and fairy tales and rupkatha of Bengal. My published articles in journals and in anthologies and invited lectures have been on fairy tales, women's writings and postcolonial literature.